

Dutch tin glazed blue and white charger, circa 1690

£95

REF: 4955

Diameter: 34 cm (13.4")

Description

Dutch tin glazed blue and white charger in the oriental style, circa 1690.

Dutch tin-glazed pottery, or "delftware," emerged in the 16th century, characterised by its white glaze with vibrant, hand-painted designs. Influenced by Asian porcelain, it features intricate patterns and scenes, often in blue and white. Renowned for its craftsmanship, this pottery became a symbol of Dutch artistry and domestic elegance.