Description

A set of four Regency painted side chairs with rush seats, circa 1820. The rush seats have been restored but the paint is gorgeously original.

Regency rush-seated chairs, popular during the early 19th century, feature elegant wooden frames with woven rush seats. These chairs blend the Regency era's neo-classical style with practical, durable seating. Their simple yet refined design reflects the period's appreciation for both aesthetics and functionality in domestic furniture.
