

18th century Indian carved alabaster painted tiger

£345

Description

18th century Indian carved alabaster painted figure of a tiger on a red velvet cushion.

Carved alabaster, a soft, translucent stone, is prized for its smooth texture and delicate appearance. Historically used in sculptures, religious artefacts, and decorative objects, alabaster carving allows for intricate detailing. Its luminous quality, often enhanced by light, makes it a favoured material for creating elegant and timeless art pieces.
