

Large Victorian glass apothecary jar

£495

REF: 5675

Height: 71 cm (28")

Diameter: 22 cm (8.7")

Description

A large Victorian glass apothecary jar with cut faceted stopper, circa 1880.

Apothecary jars are traditional containers used by pharmacists to store herbs, medicines, and other remedies. Typically made of glass or ceramic, these jars often feature tight-fitting lids to preserve contents. Decorated with labels or intricate designs, apothecary jars are both functional and decorative, reflecting the history of medicine and pharmacy.