

Victorian ruby and diamond gold ring

£195

Description

A Victorian 9ct gold engraved ring set with two rubies and a rose cut diamond, hallmarked Birmingham 1897

UK Ring Size: K

Rose-cut diamonds are a timeless, vintage-inspired diamond cut characterised by a flat base and a domed crown covered with triangular facets resembling the petals of a rose. Originating in the 16th century, this antique style maximises sparkle in low light, offering a soft, romantic glow.

Unlike modern cuts, rose-cut diamonds lack a pavilion, making them lighter and more affordable per carat. Their unique, old-world charm appeals to those seeking understated elegance and distinctive, unconventional jewellery designs.