Description

This simple and handsome pair of Scottish sterling silver candlesticks have domed circular bases rising to a plain cylindrical column. Made by the excellent Hamilton & Inches in Edinburgh, they have been crafted in a substantial gauge of silver and are unfilled, meaning they are solid silver. Each stick is fitted with a removable circular nozzle for ease of removing candle wax and cleaning.

Made in 2000, they are fully hallmarked with commemorative millennium hall marks on the bases and have the standard mark on the nozzles. Given their classically simple form, this pair of silver candlesticks would fit seamlessly into any dining traditional or modern table setting.
